DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Walker (US 6,356,878 B1).

As to claims 1-15 Walker discloses (see at least columns 1-20, but in particular columns 1-10) a method for facilitating a transfer of a payment for a computerized transaction between a buyer and a seller for the purchase of an item, communicating and displaying over a computer to an agent, and later to the seller, data and information about that transaction, with identification of the buyer and seller and the amount of the transaction, providing for payment of the transaction at an agent location, and communicating to the seller the payment, transferring the payment funds from the buyer to the agent and to the seller, communicating the agents confirmation number and the sellers order number and the total price including fees, providing an agent computing system to the utilized computer network from various locations, and seller receiving payment. Walker does not specifically teach the currency conversion or informational system.

However Official Notice is taken that international trade over computer networks has been in existence for many decades, and especially since the advent of the internet in the early 1990s and, as shown by the applicants drawings, agencies have existed to handle the necessary multiple currency transactions commonly involved, including converting currencies, displaying the conversion rates, reporting the two different currency amounts and the total transaction amount to all the parties involved as part of a common and well known everyday system to facilitate international trade. It would have been obvious for one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to have utilized these agency systems for currency transactions and informational reporting for all of the parties involved in the transaction.

2. Note is taken by the examiner that should the applicant find objectionable any statements made herein by the examiner regarding inherency, implicitness, obviousness, or Official Notice, Applicant can make a proper challenge to those statements only by providing adequate information or argument so that on its face it creates a reasonable doubt regarding the circumstances justifying those statements: a simple response requesting a reference without doing so, or a response that fails to logically refute the basic assumptions underlying the justification, will result in an improper and failed challenge and those unchallenged statements will remain the record of the case. Applicants must seasonably challenge those statements in the first response following an Office Action. If an applicant fails to do so, his right to challenge them is waived.
